Members Join the Instructional Leadership Corps

Gabriela Orozco-Gonzalez (MGE), Angelica Paz (LMI), and David Keyes (MHS) have been recognized as accomplished and experienced educators who want to take a leadership role in the teaching profession. Each has been invited to join in the Instructional Leadership Corps.

CTA, the Stanford Center for Opportunity Policy in Education (SCOPE), and the National Board Resource Center (NRBC) have received a collaborative grant to create an Instructional Leadership Corps (ILC) of accomplished classroom teachers, site leaders, administrators and higher education professionals.

The members of the ILC support the design and implementation of school-based professional learning around instructional practice, and create and lead regional professional development. This is a three year project.
